

COMPANY "B" MUSTERED OUT

Adjutant General Issues Order Calculated to Cut Out Dead Material. Large Number of Men Mustered Out of Service

Final action necessary to obliterate Company "A" of the Arizona National Guard, and for a good many years stationed in Phoenix was taken yesterday when Adjutant General Harris issued special order number 29, transferring about 45 men to company "B" and the remainder of the enlisted men to an unassigned company which will be reorganized.

Company "B" also went under the axe. The order also contains a clause which musters out that company, and with it all those men assigned from company "A."

Col. Harris stated that the object of his seemingly summary action was to get rid of those men belonging to company "A" who lived out of town and were not available for service. The new unassigned company is made up of the residue of companies A and B. Company "B" will be transferred to Safford, as soon as the newly organized company there is accepted by Lieut. Ristine who will inspect the company on the nineteenth.

FEMINISTIC FILM; GIRL IN FOUR PARTS

Miss Ethelyndal McMullin Writes, Produces and Acts All Parts of Comedy; Girl Camera Man.

Something new in the way of a motion picture has been produced by a Phoenix girl, Miss Ethelyndal McMullin, who is the hero, heroine and every other character in a two-reel comedy about to be released.

Miss McMullin, who with Miss Cora Beardsley, is touring the United States with a special invitation to every governor to visit the San Diego exposition, is in Phoenix at present, and it is quite possible that her remarkable picture will be shown here.

"During our motor tour we had many idle moments when we worked out the details of what we believe is a really screamingly funny film," said Miss McMullin yesterday. "The scene is laid in an employment office and gives an opportunity to introduce an Irishman, a Dutch girl, an Italian woman, a Bowers' tough, a farmer, a negro, and then just a girl. I take all the parts and I assume four characters, made, of course, by four exposures of the same film at one time. Oh, no, really it is not cleverness on my part; the cleverness is all due to the photographer, Miss Beardsley."

Miss McMullin, who is an ardent feminist and takes the greatest pride in the fact that the scenario was written, acted and photographed without the aid of man. She declares the releases will be made

ED BARNUM OUT FOR CONSTABLE

Well Known Policeman and Pioneer of Phoenix, Announces His Candidacy for Nomination Before the Democratic Primaries

Edward N. Barnum, member of the Phoenix police force for more than three years, yesterday announced his candidacy for the nomination for constable for the East Precinct of Phoenix, subject to the Democratic primaries. From now until the primaries he will press his campaign with vigor and will stand squarely on his reputation as a citizen and an officer.

Policeman Barnum is a native of Phoenix. He comes of one of the oldest families in Arizona, of a family closely identified with the early history of this section. His father, Thomas Barnum, was one of the most progressive men in this section in his day. He it was who laid out the present townsite of Phoenix at a time when the community was located about four miles east. It was Barnum who was the moving spirit in the construction of the first irrigation canal in this section, furnishing men and mules for the work of building the Swilling ditch. Thomas Barnum was the first sheriff of Maricopa county.

There is hardly a man, woman or child in Phoenix but that knows Edward N. Barnum, and it is safe to predict that he will be a formidable candidate at the primaries.

OGLESBY SAYS GIRL THREATENED SUICIDE

Bessie Grennan whose father yesterday was committed to the state prison took the witness stand in Justice De Souza's court and told of her association with James H. Oglesby, with whom she passed two days and two nights in the barn at 1126 East Monroe street.

Choosing his words carefully that he might not make the task any the more difficult for the sixteen year old girl, County Attorney Clyde M. Gandy quietly questioned the witness. Haltingly she told how she had accompanied the boy and remained with him, rather than go back to her father.

She said that "the boy" had told her he was nineteen.

"Did you leave the barn for your meals?" asked Mr. Gandy.

"No. The boy brought me sandwiches and soda pop."

"That is all," said the state.

"Don you desire to ask any questions?" asked Justice DeSouza of Oglesby.

"Am I not entitled to a lawyer if I have not the funds," asked the boy.

He was informed that he would be given an attorney when his case came up before the superior court.

"I'd like to take the stand now," he said. His first statement was that he was not nineteen, but eighteen and then he told practically the same story as that of the girl except his reason for taking her with him. "I did see her on the street and I asked her to go to the circus. We passed several hours together and then I asked her where she lived and she said she would not go home, that if I did not take her with me she would kill herself. I wanted to take her to the home of one of her girl friends and she said no, she wanted to stay with me. For a long time she would not tell me the reason and then she did. She kept insisting that she would take her life and I believed her."

The boy said that he told her he might go away but still she clung to him rather than to return to her father.

The court heard the story in silence and as it was concluded, Justice De Souza said, "I must hold you to answer to the superior court." He fixed the bond in sum of $2,000.

County Attorney Gandy said that before Grennan left for Florence he expressed a desire to make a statement to the press that he had never been guilty of cruelty to his daughters when the matter was reported to the juvenile court one year ago.

"I never abused the girls and did the best I could for them," said he.

GULLEY WITNESSES STILL LACK FEES

Attorney General Will Give Out Another Opinion in Short While Dealing With Legality.

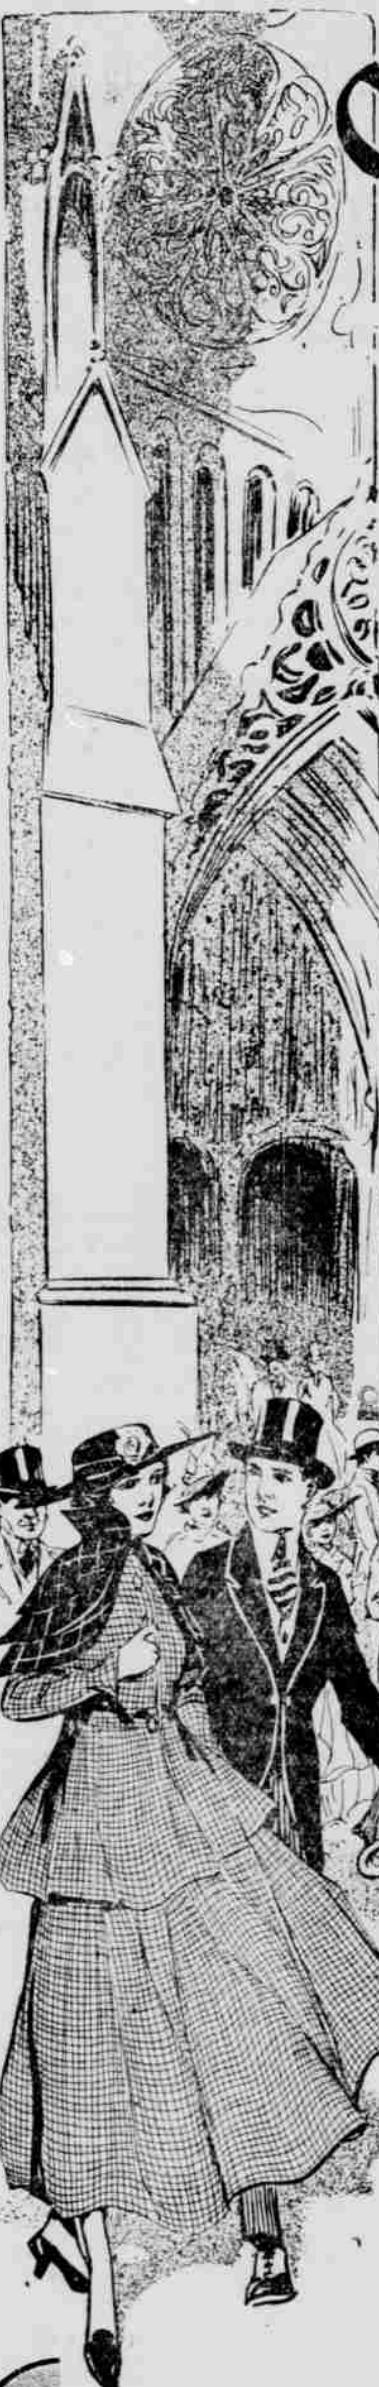

The question of paying the witnesses who appeared in the Gulley trial, is still in the hands of Attorney General Wiley E. Jones. Adjutant General Harris has asked the attorney general for a supplementary opinion as to the validity and the amount which the witnesses can legally ask.

Harris is anxious for the matter to be cleared up and is perfectly willing to verify the vouchers, providing the state auditor will pay them.

Jones stated yesterday that he would have another opinion ready to be given out in a day or so.

through Miss Beardsley and herself. "Why bother with a film exchange?" asks the capable young woman. Those who have seen the picture say it is decidedly clever and amusing. Miss McMullin's long stage experience as character woman and later her year's work with Ford Sterling, the film favorite, has fitted her for the various roles she has essayed in this feature.
